Portraits at an exhibition

mardi 1er septembre 2020

This is the first day of our confinement here in Paris, which soon will feel a bit like house arrest. So, to help cheer you up, in these times of doom and gloom, I have decided to bring the museum to you in the form of a virtual exhibition thrice weekly. I have picked 25 photos from a work in progress I started years ago. The photos are portraits of visitors or guards in museums. It's candid photography, capturing life on the run, a moment in time. I hope you will find many other ways to brighten up your days, until things return to « normal » — Brigitte Cavanagh.
